“Amanda”

“Amanda” came to us with a lot of anxiety about her possible pregnancy. She had just started nursing school and was very concerned about a pregnancy changing her long awaited plans.

Amanda met with a caring counselor and discussed options and avenues of support, then heard her baby’s heartbeat on the sonogram. But when she left the clinic, she was still undecided about her pregnancy. Staff and volunteers continued to pray for her.

After a few weeks, Amanda called us for a second sonogram and shared that she had chosen life for her preborn child!

“The Clinic staff was comforting, reassuring and amazing. Speaking to my counselor and the nurse gave me a much better perspective. I felt heard and loved. They helped me so much. Lots of information. They are comforting and caring. I needed them today.”

“Holly” came to our clinic this year. She was in a “complicated” relationship, already had a child, and was planning to abort this baby. However, she wanted to talk it through first. An abortion nearly 20 years ago had left her with feelings of guilt and shame... Holly wanted to start fresh and make a better life for herself, and another baby was not in her plans.

While speaking with one of compassionate, caring counselors, Holly began to talk through her situation and look at all her options. When she began to consider this new life - her child’s sibling - and the life she could build for them, she smiled and said she knew she couldn’t abort this baby.

“I think it was God’s intervention that I chose to come to the Women’s Clinic. Had it not been for those staff I met with that day, I don’t know what would have happened. Thank you so much for all the support you gave me throughout my journey.”

"Maria" worked full time and was caring for her aging mother while raising a teenager of her own. Between work, family responsibilities, and tight finances, her own health kept slipping to the bottom of the list. With no health insurance the cost for routine gynecological care was unaffordable, so Maria postponed annual exams year after year. She worried about it, but didn't know where to turn.

When Maria learned about the Women's Clinics no cost women's wellness visits, she finally felt relief and scheduled an appointment. At her visit, Maria received a full well-woman exam, including a PAP test at no cost. Just as meaningful was the time she spent talking one-on-one with a compassionate nurse practitioner who listened carefully, answered her questions, and addressed her concerns with respect for her physical, emotional, and spiritual well-being.

"The medical staff spent time with me and addressed all my concerns. They made me feel comfortable and cared for. I am so thankful."
